Introduction

In today's digital age, having a website for your restaurant is super important. It's like telling your customers who you are and what you serve. Sharing nice pictures and descriptions of your food makes it easier for people to choose what they want. Having clear info about when you're open shows you respect their time. And if you ask for their opinions, it shows you care about what they think. A good website is one that's easy to use, loads fast, and works well on phones and computers, so everyone can enjoy it
